

Fray Model

Write the topic or idea in the middle box. Write four different ways to represent it in the outside boxes.

The diagram is a large rectangle divided into four quadrants by a central horizontal and vertical line. In the center of these lines is a rounded rectangular box. This structure is used for the Frayer Model, where the central box is for the topic and the four quadrants are for different representations of that topic.